Part II. Reading Comprehension (50 points)

Directions: There are four passages in this part. Each passage is followed by five questions or unfinished statements. For each of them, there are four choices marked A, B, C and D. You should decide on the best choice and mark the corresponding letter on the Answer Sheet with a single line through the centre.

Passage one

When Jane was in 7th grade, she found that there was a lot of trouble in reading. Her mother used to sit by her side, and explain each paragraph of each school reading assignment to her because she didn't understand what she was reading.

In class, Jane tried to hide the fact that she couldn't read. Her teachers gave them the last ten minutes of class to start their reading homework, and she would sit there for the last ten minutes of class staring at the page, pretending she was reading it. She had to wait until she got home so her mother could explain it to her.

By 8th grade she started comprehension a little on her own but she still read very slowly at that time. She went out and took a course on speed reading. Then she developed her own way to read faster with better results. She started practicing these techniques every day, and as she started to read faster, her comprehension increased. So she was able to read faster with better comprehension.

She found that when you read slowly, word by word, you get lost in the words, lose the bigger picture, and your comprehension drops. When you read faster, your comprehension goes up because. instead of getting lost in the words, you can get the general idea.

Passage Two

On Thursday afternoon Mrs. Clark e, dressed for going out, took her handbag with some money and her key in, Pulled the door behind her to lock it and went to the Over 60s Club. She always went there on Thursday. It was a nice outing for an old woman who lived alone.

At six o'clock she came home, let herself in and at once smelt cigarette smoke.Cigarette smoke in her house? How? How? Had someone got in?She checked the back door and the windows.All were locked or fastened, as usual. There was no sign of forced entry.

Over a cup of tea she was wondering whether someone might have a key that fitted her front door---“a master”key perhaps. So she stayed at home the following Thursday. Nothing happened.Was anyone watching her movements? On the Thursday after that, dressed as usual, she went out at her usual time,but she didn't go to the club.Instead she took a short cut home again,letting herself in through her garden and the back door. She settled down to wait.

It was Just after four o'clock when the front door bell rang., Clarke was making a cup of tea at the time. The bell rang again, and then she heard her letterbox being pushed open. With the kettle at the time.The bell rang again,and then she heard her letterbox being pushed open.With the kettle of boiling water in her hand,she moved quietly towards the front door. A long piece of wire appeared through the letterbox,and then a hand.The wire turn and caught around the knob on the door-lock,

Mrs. Clarke raised the kettle and poured the water over the hand. There was a shout outside, and the skin seemed to drop off the fingers like a glove. The wire fell to the floor, the hand was pulled back, and Mrs. Clarke heard the sound of running feet.

Passage Three

It was a cold winter day. A woman drove up to the Rainbow Bridge tollbooth(收费站). "I'm paying for myself, and for the six cars behind me," she said with a smile. One after another, the next six drivers arriving at the tollbooth were informed, "Some lady up ahead already paid your fare."

It turned out that the woman, Natalie Smith, had read something on a friend's refrigerator: "Practice random(随意的) kindness and senseless acts of beauty." The phrase impressed her so much that she copied it down.

Judy Forman spotted the same phrase on a warehouse wall far away from home. When it stayed on her mind for days, she decided to drive all the way back to copy it down. "I thought it was beautiful," she said, explaining why she would write it at the bottom of all her letters, like a message from above. "Her husband, Frank, liked the phrase so much that he put it up on the classroom wall for his students, one of whom was the daughter of Alice Johnson, a local news reporter. Alice put it in the newspaper, admitting that though she liked it, she did not know where it came from or what it really meant.

Two days later, Alice got a call from Anne Herbert, a woman living in Marin. It was in a restaurant that Anne wrote the phrase down on a piece of paper, after turning it around in her mind for days.

"Here's the idea," Anne says. "Anything you think there should be more of, do it randomly." Her fantasies include painting the classrooms of old schools, leaving hot meals on kitchen tables in the poor part of town, and giving money secretly to a poor old lady. Anne says, "Kindness can build on itself as much as violence can."

The acts of random kindness spread. If you were one of those drivers who found your fare paid, who knows what you might have been inspired to do for someone else later? Like all great events, kindness begins slowly, with every single act. Let it be yours!

71. Why did Natalie Smith pay for the six cars behind her?

- A. She knew the car drivers well B. She wanted to show kindness
C. She hoped to please others D. She had seven tickets

72. Judy Forman copied down the phrase because she _____.

75. What can be inferred from the last paragraph?

- A. People should not practice random kindness to those in need
B. People who receive kindness are likely to offer it to others
C. People should not practice random kindness to strangers they meet.
D. People who receive kindness are less likely to pay it back to the giver

Passage Four

Peter loved to buy used articles. Almost a month ago he bought a popular word game that used little pieces of wood with different letters on them. As he was purchasing it, the salesgirl said, "Uh, look, the game box hasn't even been opened yet. That might be worth some money."

Peter examined the box, and sure enough, it was completely covered in factory-sealed plastic. He saw a date of 1973 on the back of the box.

You should put that up for auction (拍卖) on the Internet, and see what happens," the salesgirl said.

"Yes, you're right. People like something rare," Peter agreed. "I can't imagine there being very many unopened boxes of this game still around 40 years later."

"Don't forget to tell me if you sell it," the salesgirl smiled.

"No problem," Peter said.

After he got home, Peter went online to several auction websites looking for his game. but he could not find it. Then he typed in the name of the word game and hit SEARCH. The search result was 543 websites containing information about the changes of the game. Over the years, the game had been produced using letters in different sizes and game boards in different colors. He also found some lists of game fans looking for various versions of the game, Peter emailed some of them telling them what he had.

Two weeks later. Peter went back to the shop.

“Hello! Do you still remember the unopened word game?”

The salesgirl looked at him for a second, then recognized him and said, Oh, hi!

I’ve got something for you, "Peter said. "I sold the game and made $ 1000, Thank you for your suggestion. " He handed her three $ 100 bills.
